Bio:

Matt is an Executive Lawyer in the commercial team at Bartier Perry.

He is commercial lawyer with some 26 years experience. He has a broad commercial law background, enabling him to advise on his areas of special interest in a realistic commercial context.

His areas of expertise include

- Risk management
- Legal compliance and policy development,
- Board member and governance duties
- Commercial contracts and procurement
- Constitutional matters.

In addition his practice includes all aspects of information technology, intellectual property and Trade Practices.

A significant proportion of Matt's practice is in the NFP and government sectors.

He currently is seconded as a guest attendee at board meetings at one of Bartier Perry's industry association NFP clients. Matt is a regular and sought after presenter for industry organisations such as the Meetings and Events Australia and the Australian Society of Association Executives. He also contributes a regular column to the industry publication mice.net and is a presenter at TAFE NSW.

Matthew has wide exposure to the public sector through his work over many years advising an Area Health Service on all manner of commercial agreements and most recently assisting a major public sector organisation and local government with their procurement work. He is therefore very familiar with the specific issues that will arise when advising government agencies and in particular ensuring that probity is maintained at all levels.
