Registration and renewal basic timeline

Complete selfassessment and application TIP: Allow time to prepare for audit, make sure your documents, systems and processes are in place and that the auditor can access them.

TIP: Allow time and resources to develop corrective action plans and address any non-conformities identified in the audit process.

NDIS Commission advises outcome of application

1-3 months

3-6 months

6-9 months

Engaging auditor

- Receive scope of audit via email from the NDIS Commission
- Request quotes from 3-5
 Approved Quality Auditors
 (AQA)
- Choose an AQA that best fits your organisation
- Engage the auditor and negotiate timelines

Stage 1 Audit

- Generally a desktop audit
- Reviews policies, procedures and documents

Stage 2 Audit

- Certification only
- Must occur within 3 months of Stage 1 audit

Recommendations

- Receive a copy of the draft report from the auditor and comment/query if required
- AQA provides report to the NDIS Commission

Please note: It is intended that the outcome from the NDIS Commission should occur within the nine-month timeframe, however, this may not always occur.

If successful, the 3-year cycle begins from this date. Mid-term audit in 18 months

Registration renewal can be started 6 months from the expiry date.

Tips for managing your timelines

Monitor the NDIS Commission portal. This will help you to track the process of your applications or be aware of the registration renewal date for your organisation. Check the details for your organisation and key contact people are correct.
Check your emails: Check your email and junk email for your scope of audit or other contacts from the NDIS Commission.
Start researching auditors as soon as possible. Start looking for an auditor as soon as you have your Scope of Audit to ensure you have enough time to meet all other timeline requirements.
Get quotes from several auditors at the same time. This will help you with your decision making, by receiving information and quotes to compare.
Consider which AQAs have local auditors. Having an auditor who is locally based can save on audit costs.
For renewals, submit the application as soon as you can prior to the expiry date. Include your self-assessment.
Arrange to start the auditing process before the required date. This will allow time to address any non-conformities.
If you need to implement corrective actions, put these in place as soon as possible. This will allow the auditor to sign off, report and complete the audit process.
If you receive non-conformities, start to action these as soon as possible. If they are minor, don't wait until you are approaching your next audit.
Have an ongoing focus of continuous improvement. Consider self-assessments, registration renewal and audit processes as opportunities to improve for your organisation. This will help you to be proactive and not reactive. Think about how you will evidence continuous improvement throughout the audit cycle. This will help you to be prepared at audit time.
